Trial.

The trial of Roundsman Mathew F. Datley. room of Joe Geller's saloon, at Pitt and the pier in safety.

by Judge Cowing in the face of the identification and testimony of Policeman Morris WRECKAGE FROM THE GILCHER. Court by Justice Grady, was brought up from Cohen, now known as the "champagne lunch copper."

Lawyers Friend and House, who are Dalley's counsel, also appeared for Francisco.
Two days were occupied in securing a jury for Dailey, the twelfth juror being chosen late ye terday atternoon. These are the twelve men who hold the accused roundsman's fate in their hands: The Jury.

At the very outset of the trial there comes to light an incident that would seem to cor-roborate the charges of Mrs. Hannan that Dalley has been bribing or attempting to bribe witnesses to beamirch the character of her daughter as well as her own.

What Dees This Book Show?

Among the witnesses subpenned by Lawyers Friend & House, for the defense, is Henry Cohen, a tailor, of 512 Grand street. It is said that Assistant District-Autorney Weeks had also subpenned Cohen, unders anding that his order book would show that Dailey had ordered a suit of clothes for a man who was to appear as a witness in his behalf, and, it is alleged, testify against the reputation of Mamie Hannan.

Cohen came to court yesterday with his order book, which Messrs. Friend & House put away in their office safe for safe-keeping. Learning this, Mr. Weeks asked Recorder impth for an attachment for the book, but on Lawyer House's declaration that the book What Does This Book Show?

The sickly appearance of the unfortunate complainant, Mamie Hannan, has caused many of the court attaches, as well as unformed policemen, whose duties bring them to the brown-stone building, to express much sympathy, while for Dailey they are not sympathy, while for Dailey they are not sympathy, while for Dailey they are not sympathy.

The Principal Witnesses.

Among Dailey's witnesses present was Sergi. Attert W. McDonald, who, Mainie claims, was present when the alleged assault was committed. He was in full uniform.

Other witnesses in court were Lizzie Lawlor, Mamie's principal witness, who was also present when the alleged assault was committed, and whose attendance at Dailey's police court examination was secured by an EVENING Wonth reporter after the repeated declarations of Capt. Eakins and Dailey could not find them. not find them. Saloon-Keeper Joe Geller, Mrs. Hanhan and her son were also in court.

Mamie Hannan's Sudden Hiness. While waiting in Assistant-District Attor sey Nims's room for court to open, Mamie dannan was setzed with a sudden attack of liness. She was executed downstairs, and tter waiking around in the open air for a sw moments soon recovered.
